

Abstract

Lower Eyelid Rejuvenation Surgery in the Asian Patient: Pearls and Pitfalls

Rejuvenation surgery for the lower eyelid and cheek region is one of the most popular requests amongst Asian patients. The lower eyelid and cheek region is an anatomically complex region and there are multiple considerations when selecting a surgical technique that best suits the individual patient. The author shares his patient selection criteria and surgical technique with the audience in this video demonstration of surgical correction of eyebags.